

April is Financial Literacy Month

Celebrated annually, this month serves to highlight the importance of strengthening financial literacy skills, no matter our age.

The financial education of our youth equips them with skills to become financially confident and responsible adults. I am excited to provide resources to assist in growing understanding about budgeting, saving and spending. Teaching financial education to children helps them gain the skills needed to plan for the future and to instill confidence to make sound financial decisions in adulthood.

Linked below are free Financial Bingo boards to help teach children various financial skills and lessons. Each board is designed with activities and talking points specific for their unique age group about topics including savings goals, earning, borrowing and much more. Complete five across, down or diagonally to get a bingo!

Elementary Bingo Board

Middle School Bingo Board

High School Bingo Board

Elementary Board – 2/page

Middle School Board – 2/page

High School Board – 2/page

There are even more resources to explore on my Financial Education and Empowerment webpage than just the Financial Bingo boards. With games, lessons, talking points and apps, there are resources for all ages!

Throughout Financial Literacy Month, join me on Facebook, Twitter or Instagram for even more information, articles, games and videos about various financial literacy topics like budgeting, debt relief, retirement savings, credit scores and more.

Facebook

Twitter

Instagram